RE: Woodall v. Woodall
Case No.: 16-DR-1742

Dear Al:

Although I am in receipt of Mr. Woodall's response to the Wife's Request for Production to Wife dated February 23, 2017, as filed with the Clerk on March 30, 2017, strangely enough NO DOCUMENTS were attached to the response. Although you have stated under a number of responses that your client will be providing the documents "at a later date" as you well know, "a later date" has no legal significance, and does not represent a valid response to the request.

Upon your receipt of this correspondence I would kindly request that you advise me at your earliest convenience the meaning of "at a later date" as it applies to this particular response to our request, and moreover, when we may be expecting these documents. Our long-standing Motion for Temporary Relief is now less than one month away, and we believe that the documents requested are readily available to the Husband and are likely to be relevant to the financial issues to be heard by the Court on May 1, 2017.

Thanking you for your attention this matter, and anticipating your prompt response, I remain,

Sincerely,

Cary Alan Cliff
